The Camel

The camel can go without water for a long time. Some people think it keeps water in its hump¹. This is not true. It keeps food in its hump. The camel's body changes the food into fat. Then the fat is kept in the hump. A camel cannot keep the fat all over its body. Fat all over an animal's body keeps the animal warm. Camels live in the desert². They do not want to be warm during the day.

The desert is very hot. The camel gets hotter and hotter during the day. It keeps this heat³ in its body because the nights are cold.

The Arabian camel has one hump. The Bactrian camel of Central Asia has two humps. It also has long, thick⁴ hair because the winters are cold in Central Asia.

Arabic has about 150 words to describe a camel. Many people who speak Arabic need all these words because the camel is very important to them.

Endangered Species¹

A species is the name for a group of animals that are alike, such as lions and tigers. If a species is endangered it means there are very few of those animals left in the world. If all the animals in a species die, the species becomes extinct. Those animals are gone forever².

The koala is close³ to being an endangered species. Interestingly, because the koala does not eat whatever it can eat, their number goes down day by day.

When you were younger, were you a picky eater⁴?

Did your parents have to force⁵ you to eat things that were good for you? Hopefully you listened to what they taught you and ate your dinner. Koalas are picky eaters. They live in tall eucalyptus trees. Many of these trees are also called gum trees. Koalas eat the leaves⁶ of those trees. Since there are over 600 different types of eucalyptus trees, the koala should have no problem finding food.

But koalas are picky! They only want certain eucalyptus tree leaves to eat.

Out of the 600 kinds of trees, koalas will only eat the leaves of about 120 kinds⁷ of eucalyptus tree. Some are even pickier than that. The koalas of an area will only eat about four or five kinds of eucalyptus leaves. They prefer to die of hunger than eat the other kinds.
